

The present invention generally provides a method for preventing surface corrosion in an edge bead removal process. The method includes rinsing the substrate surface with a rinsing solution containing a rinsing agent and an inhibiting agent prior to removing the edge bead. The inhibiting agent bonds to the substrate surface and operates to prevent corrosion of the substrate surface after the rinsing process.

[illegible]